The San Diego Police Department began the Retired Senior Volunteer Patrol (RSVP) program in June, 1992. Since then, the program has grown to over 370 members serving the citizens of San Diego in a variety of ways. The seniors assist area station personnel with crime prevention programs, perform vacation house checks, You Are Not Alone (YANA) checks on the elderly, sick or shut-ins and traffic control.

Interested seniors who are 50 years of age or older, retired or work only part-time, are in good health with a valid California Driver's License and are interested in working with law enforcement officers are encouraged to apply for the program.

Please join Police Chief Bill Lansdowne and the Police Department command staff as they congratulate and welcome 18 new members to the program.

This is an opportunity for citizens to learn about the Retired Senior Volunteer Patrol program. The general public is invited and encouraged to attend.
